When the Duke of Buckingham is back in England, you must be at the next ball that he goes to. He'll be wearing twelve diamonds. You must get near him and take two of them. Let me know as soon as you have them and return to Paris with them immediately.	The Cardinal	Milady	It is part of a plot to show the Duke of Buckingham's love affair with the Queen.
Someone who cares would like to know when you'll be well enough for a walk in the forest. My servant will return for your reply tomorrow.	Milady	Comte de Wardes	Because she wants to start a love affair, but d'Artagnan's servant gets the message by accident.
Until now, I wasn't sure that your first two letters were really for me because I don't deserve your love. But today, your servant has promised me that it's true. I'll come tonight at eleven to say sorry.	d'Artagnan	Milady	He wants to trick her into thinking he is the Comte de Wardes.
Your friends Athos, Porthos and Aramis have been guests at my inn on their journey to La Rochelle and have asked me to send you twelve bottles of their favourite wine.	Milady	d'Artagnan	She wants to trick d'Artagnan into thinking she is the innkeeper sending wine from his friends, which is actually poisoned.

	Who sent this message?	Who to?	Why?
It is by my order that anything which is done by the owner of this document, has been done for the good of France.	Cardinal Richelieu	Milady	It is a letter to save Milady from arrest, but d'Artagnan gets it.
I write as a friend from Paris. A woman who you believe is your relative plans to kill you. She's returning to England on a very dangerous mission. Don't let her succeed. The fleur-de-lis on her left shoulder will prove to you that she's already a guilty woman.	d'Artagnan	Lord de Winter	To tell him what Milady is planning and who she really is.
