	From . . . To . . .	Why did they send it?
I have some surprising news. Yesterday, Louisa arrived back in Uppercross from Lyme. So in the evening, Charles and I went to visit her at the Great House, and we learned that she is engaged to Captain Benwick! We thought that she and Captain Wentworth might get engaged. So you see, Anne, Charles was quite wrong about you. Captain Benwick was never interested in you.	From Mary to Anne	To tell her that Louisa is going to marry Captain Benwick.
Our cousin, William Elliot, is in Bath. He's visited us three times.	From Elizabeth to Anne	To tell her how often they have seen William Elliot in Bath, because she wants to marry him.
Sir Walter and his daughter have left London and gone back to Kellynch Hall. Sir Walter is a very stupid man. He has invited me to Kellynch this summer, but I won't go. I'm not interested in Kellynch. Soon I'll get married and have my own money.	From William Elliot to Anne Elliot's friend's husband	He wants to tell him what he really thinks of the Elliot family.
I was listening to your conversation with Captain Harville, and I must tell you my feelings. When a man really loves a woman, he will never forget her. For eight years, I have loved only you. I came to Bath just to find you. Please tell me that I am not too late. F. W.	From Captain Wentworth to Anne Elliot	He is jealous of William Elliot, and he still loves Anne and wants to marry her.
